

DANIELSON
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson of Allen, Ill. recently entertained the following guests: Mrs. G. E. Disque and Mrs. C. Routh, Norwich; Miss Anna Spitznagel, New York; Max Finkel, Boston; Mrs. J. P. Smith, Moscow; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson, Miss Claude White, Danielson, Fred Green, Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome L. Moore, East Brooklyn; Mrs. J. C. Witter, and Misses Helen P. Ayward and Catherine T. Thayer returned Friday evening, after two weeks' stay at Ocean beach.

A number of Danielson men were at the Hills Grove race track, where C. H. Michaels has horses entered, for Friday's races.

Rev. Homer W. Tope, D. D., district superintendent for the Pennsylvania anti-slavery league, delivered an address on temperance Sunday morning at the Congregational church.

Rev. Roy R. Chamberlain, non-union law of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Jacobs who has been doing Red Cross work in France, has returned and is at Alexander's lake with his family.

NEWTON PHILLIPS DECLARES CHILL NOT STRONG FOR U.S.
From Chill, where he has been identified with the work of the Gurgenheim copper interests, Newton Phillips, formerly of this town, arrived here Friday for a brief stay before reporting at Yuma, Arizona, September 1, for military service.

Mr. Phillips is of draft age, and was entitled to exemption on account of the work in which he was engaged—producing copper for the United States government—he did not want any favor of that kind, so he resigned and came back to the States.

His trip up from South America was not without its drama, and he was a witness of the sinking of the Merritt by a German submarine, saw the wrecking of the Diamond shoals lightship, and, eventually, experienced what it means to have a steamer on which he was a passenger attacked by one of the German sub-sea monsters.

He came ashore on the United Fruit company's steamer that made a successful runaway fight against an enemy U-boat, as reported in press dispatches.

Mr. Phillips says that Chill is not strong for the United States, though most of the nearby South American countries resist their sympathies with this country. Nearly all of the wealthy classes of Chile are strongly pro-German, either openly or secretly, he says, and up to a few months ago many of the higher officers of the Chilean army were Germans. Most of them have been deported.

While this is Mr. Phillips' old home town, he has spent many years abroad, and is well known there, having spent several years in the United States reclamation service.

Mr. Phillips is a fine up-standing young American who is anxious to do his bit for his country. He is the grandson of the late Newton Phillips, who lived on the Phillips farm at Alexander's lake and who was one of the best known Killbuck's citizens.

Humor and Patience in Town Court.

There were several smile-producing situations in the town court Friday morning for the few that happened to be there. Two of the prisoners furnished the amusement. Timothy Healey, an umbrella mender, calling Woonsocket his home, was in for intoxication.

He was contrite—and shaky. "Old John Barleycorn is too strong for me up this way," he said.

"Have we had you in this court before?" inquired Deputy Judge Tucker, and the answer was an affirmative. "How many times have you been sent to jail from this court?" asked Judge Tucker.

Healey demonstrated that he has remarkable foresight. "This will make the third time," he said. He got 30 days.

John Bennett, Putnam, was also presented. He faced an intoxication charge. Chief Grimsbach posted the court on what Bennett had been doing. Bennett pleaded guilty to intoxication and also to breach of the peace, remarking as to the latter charge: "It must be true if the chief says so, but I must have been crazy; I don't remember about it."

It so happened that Bennett had stated on the street Thursday night in the hearing of Chief Grimsbach that "I am not afraid of that big cop."

Bennett heard this statement in court Friday in wide-eyed amazement—then he grinned and said: "You'll have to allow for that chief, because you know I sound like a fighting man. Besides I'm 60 years old. But I suppose I said it. By Gosh, I must have been foolish!"

Bennett won the sympathy of the officials and he undoubtedly deserved it. He is a good weaver and has been making from 725 to a week in a Killbuck mill. He owns property in Putnam, and slips only occasionally, he says.

He was given a chance, the court imposing a fine of $1 on each count, and costs of $14.50.

Bennett said he had $12 when he started out on a good time last week in court he had 67 cents. "I guess I

PUTNAM
Wilbur Earl, charged with non-support, was before Judge M. M. Geisler in the city court Friday morning. Before coming here in May, the couple lived at 121 Norwich Falls, Volantown, Glasgow, Jewett City and West-erly.

Their family difficulties have been brewing for some time and the wife, in connection with the non-support charge, alleged that Earl had interests other than those centered in his family. Earl countered with a like allegation, but this feature of the case, being non-essential to the matter under consideration, did not develop to any extent.

After hearing all of the evidence, Judge Geisler ordered the case continued for a period of six months, during which Earl will have his opportunity to make good with his family, which includes his wife and four children, three of whom are at the county home for children in the Sawyer district.

P. G. Wright Will to Be Contested.
Announcement has been made that the will of Phineas G. Wright, who died this spring, is to be contested. A petition for appointment of an administrator of the will to probate has been filed in the probate court for this district, and it is claimed that this action has been taken in the interest of one Phineas Wright, who lives at New London, and is represented as being a nephew of the testator.

Gard Wright, as he was familiarly known here for many years, won much notoriety by having inscribed on his tombstone in Grove street cemetery—"Going, But Not Know No."

Gard left an estate of much value and his grandniece, Mrs. Mattie Miller, who cared for him during the last years of his life, was made his chief beneficiary in the will that is to be contested. Under the will what was left of the estate after the specific bequests was divided equally between the heirs at law, share and share alike.

It is understood that the residuum was small and that the will provides that any beneficiary who might contest the will should be cut off. If the appeal is perfected the matter will come before the September term of the superior court in this city.

Preparing to Meet Draft Call.
Accepting as a foregone conclusion that congress will raise the draft age to 45 years, a number of men of this city who have no chance for exemption or who will not avail themselves of any opportunity they may have for deferred classification are beginning to set their affairs in readiness, that they may meet a call for service.

Putnam has not a few men over 21 years of age who will become Class 1A men when the new regulations go into effect. For the most of these, who are as a general rule better placed in life and more settled in home life than are the majority of younger men, going to the war represents, from a certain viewpoint, a greater sacrifice, but they are preparing to make it with the cheerful-hearted good will that has marked the departure of the young soldiers.

Vincent McAvoy, who has been fighting in France, has written relatives here of being gassed while in the town where he was stationed was under a hail of enemy gas shells. He was sent to an American hospital in the war zone and is now rapidly recovering. He says that his experiences at the front changed him over night from a "wild kid" to a real man. McAvoy formerly was employed at the Bradley theatre and later was with a circus advertising car.

Lieut. Edward F. Perry, United States medical corps, has written from "over there" to Judge M. H. Geisler of the city court that he is treating gas cases at a base hospital "far away from the big noise." Lieutenant Perry says that he has become intensely interested in his work, which he is doing in southern France, at one of the great debarcation ports assigned to the American forces.

Before being called into the service Lieutenant Perry was one of the physicians who conducted examinations of selected men of this district, and on many whom he passed as qualified he was in the habit of remarking: "I'll see you 'over there'."

Chautauque Big Attraction.
Chautauque, which has been held in Putnam throughout the present week, has again proved a great attraction for the people of this city and surrounding towns and will be welcomed back next summer with renewed enthusiasm. It has provided diversion of high class for hundreds of people who have cut vacations to save money to support the war and given them in their home towns the equivalent of a sojourn elsewhere. Robin Hood, one of the best attractions offered here in any Chautauque year, was witnessed by an audience that exceeded the seating capacity of the tent.

A force of men who are constructing the Shore Line Electric Railway company's high tension line were at work in the town of Putnam on Friday.

Wilfred Lavigne, 33, died at his home here.

Frederick Dumas of this city was elected county vice president at the State Firemen's association at the state convention just concluded in Bridgeport.

State Attorney Charles E. Searle and Judge E. M. Warner, clerk of the superior court for Windham county, have been at Eastern Point attending a meeting of the State Bar association. Private Stanton D. Wicks, Pomfret,

Roberge Brothers require About Each Other

A letter came Friday morning to Mrs. Frank Mailhot, of High street, from her brother, Private Philip Roberge, recently officially reported severely wounded in France. Private Roberge writes that he is feeling very well and was able at the time the letter was written to be up and to walk about the hospital grounds. He gave no description of the nature of his wounds, but as he is patently able to walk and to write it is assumed that he has not been permanently crippled, at least to any great extent, in the injuries he received while assisting in driving the Germans back from the Marne. Private Roberge is a member of a machine gun battalion. Before entering the army through the operation of the selective service he was a member of the Connecticut National Guard.

A strange coincidence relative to his letter arrived Friday was that in it he inquires whether his brother Edward has yet reached France. In the same mail came a letter from his brother, Private Edward Roberge, serving in France, asking for news from his brother Philip. Their sister will put them in touch with each other by mail.

New Manager From New London.
The management of the Woolworth store in Danielson has recently been changed and Miss P. M. Wheeler of New London has been placed in charge. Miss Wheeler has been connected with the company's store in New London for some time as assistant manager and the Boston headquarters, recognizing her abilities, has transferred her to this place. She is thoroughly fitted for the position and is fast making friends among local residents.

Had Beautiful Home.
Mrs. Adelbert Needham of Stafford Springs, who died Monday was born here and spent her youth on a beautiful farm, stocked with horses and expensive dogs, and which was a small colony in itself. There was a school house on the premises, wash house, smoke house and many other separate buildings, including a summer house, where guests were often entertained at tea. A governess was employed, who taught regular sessions in the school house. It was a beautiful place with wood-burned covered walls and buildings. The mile-long hill west, was called by the family name, Westberg hill, and still bears the name.
